PROFILE

Amber is a CIPP/E and CIPM-qualified data protection professional with a Bachelor of Laws from the University of Cumbria. She gained early legal experience at a regional law firm, where she developed strong communication and professional skills, alongside a growing interest in regulatory compliance.

After successfully completing The DPO Centre DPO Academy programme, Amber now supports the delivery of client-facing data protection services. Her legal knowledge, attention to detail, and proactive approach enable her to work effectively with organisations across a variety of sectors.

SAMPLE EXPERIENCE

As a Data Protection Manager (DPM), Amber contributes to data protection audits and assists with Data Protection Impact Assessments (DPIAs), Records of Processing Activities (RoPAs), and Data Subject Access Requests (DSARs). She also helps develop policies, review documentation, and produce practical guidance tailored to client needs.

Prior to joining The DPO Centre, Amber completed a legal placement, where she gained insight into case preparation, document review, and client engagement. She also held leadership roles at university, coordinating professional events and acting as a representative for her cohort, developing communication, organisation, and stakeholder management skills now central to her role in data protection.
