SAMPLE EXPERIENCE

As Group Data Protection Lead for an international membership organisation supporting healthcare professionals, Shelley helped develop and implement the company's global data protection framework and operating model. She provided legal and regulatory advice on UK data protection laws, ensuring compliance was embedded across operational processes and business activities.

Shelley oversaw the management of Data Subject Access Requests (DSARs) and personal data breaches, ensuring statutory obligations were met and risks appropriately managed. She advised on Data Protection Impact Assessments (DPIAs), Records of Processing Activities (RoPAs), and Legitimate Interests Assessments (LIAs), whilst embedding Privacy by Design principles across projects involving special category data.

Her experience also includes supporting international data transfers, collaborating with Information Security and Procurement teams on supplier due diligence and data handling controls, contributing to ISO 27001 accreditation activities, and leading a network of Data Protection Representatives to promote accountability and compliance across the organisation.
